

Policies fail health workers

An outdated law and fragmented rules ignore staffs' well-being

GEETANJALI KRISHNA,
New Delhi, 24 December

Since 1896, Bubonic plague spreads like wildfire in Mumbai (formerly Bombay) leading to about 1,900 deaths a week for the remainder of the year. The Epidemic Diseases Act (EDA) is enacted in 1897 to empower the government to tackle the crisis.

FROM THE FRONTLINE PART-IV

Used to combat the spread of cholera in a Gujarat region (in 2018), deal with dengue and malaria in Chandigarh (2015) and control swine flu in Pune (2009), this British-era legislation is now being used, along with some provisions of the Disaster Management Act, to deal with the coronavirus pandemic in India. Practically unchanged in 124 years, the EDA does not define "epidemic disease", pertains mostly to ship and land travel, and ignores the implementation of large vaccine drives — a novel concept, like air travel, a century ago. In a pandemic year, the shortcomings of this antiquated law have been starkly felt.

For this series, Business Standard interviewed frontline workers across the spectrum and found that without crucial changes, the country's response to the pandemic, and indeed to any future health crises, will continue to be flawed.

"Health infrastructure in India is robust on paper, extending to the smallest populations and communities," says R V Asokan, honorary secretary general, Indian Medical Association (IMA). He and many public health professionals believe that the biggest impediment to a cohesive nationwide approach to the pandemic is that health is a state subject. "We have seen that the fight against Covid depends on actions taken at district level," he says. "But state governments have responded to it differently. Many have not shared critical district-wise data related to testing, positivity rate, mortality etc, making a national-level effort difficult."

Prescription for India's public health infrastructure

- Update Epidemic Disease Act, 1897
- Stipulate norms for service and patient care; nurse-to-patient ratio, staffing standards and salaries in the National Nursing and Midwifery Commission Bill, 2020
- Upgrade status of ASHA workers from volunteers to government employees
- Constitute Indian Medical Service to ensure uniformity of health infrastructure across the country

To address this, IMA has long advocated for an all-India Indian Medical Service. Mooted by the Health Survey and Planning Committee (also known as Mudaliar Committee) in 1961, this cadre would ensure equitable primary, secondary and tertiary healthcare services across the country.

newspaper reports. "Proper documentation and assessment of the health of doctors is crucial as it will sharpen focus on policies for their welfare," he says. The same argument can be made for nurses and ASHA workers.

To replace the Indian Nursing Council Act (INCA), the health ministry has finalised the National Nursing and Midwifery Commission Bill, 2020. Nurse activists had hoped this would address some of the lacunae of the old law and set norms for service and patient care; nurse-to-patient ratio, staffing standards; and salaries. However, the Bill remains silent on these. "During the pandemic, several private hospitals cut nurses' salaries by as much as 30 per cent, while some government hospitals delayed salaries," says Siju Thomas, joint secretary, Indian Professional Nurses Association (IPNA). Activists say that nurses feel short changed also because they are often excluded from state nursing commissions. "Most decisions about their welfare are taken by doctors," says Jibin TC, state president of United Nurses Association in Maharashtra.

Nurses and ASHA workers also continue to be dogged by irregular working conditions.

"Nurse salaries across the country, and between government and private hospitals, differ widely," says Roy George, president of Trained Nurses Association of India (TNAI), one of the country's largest and oldest nurses' unions. "Why can't the government set a common minimum salary to protect their interests?"

ASHA workers operate under even more exploitative conditions. "How can the government expect efficient delivery of health services to the grassroots from a cadre of women who have the status of mere 'volunteers' and earn barely ₹2,000-6,000 per month?" asks Vijay Lakshmi of National Federation of ASHA Workers NFAW. "They must receive the government-mandated minimum wage of ₹8,000 per month."

The need of the hour is to not only bring in far-reaching legislative changes but to also resolve the workplace issues the health staff faces. "Sometimes, the pandemic feels like a marathon without a definite end," says George. "By increasing the number of medical and paramedical staff and improving their working conditions, perhaps we can fight the exhaustion."

BCCI approves 10 teams for 2022 IPL

Ahmedabad, 24 December

The Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI's) governing body on Thursday ratified the entry of two new franchises in the Indian Premier League (IPL) to make it a 10-team affair from 2022 during its Annual General Meeting (AGM) here.

In another major development, the board, in principle, decided to back the ICC's bid for inclusion of cricket, in the T20 format, in the 2028 Los Angeles Olympics "after getting some clarifications from the International Olympic Committee".

"Two new teams will be introduced in the 2022 IPL," a Board source told PTI.

Also, it was decided that all first-class players, both men and women, will be suitably compensated for the curtailed domestic season due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The BCCI plans to get the domestic season underway, after several months' delay, in January with the Syd Mushtaq Ali T20 champion.

In other decisions, veteran Congress leader Rajiv Shukla was officially anointed the Board's vice-president in place of his protégé Mahim Verma from Uttarakhand.

It was also learnt that the general body decided in favour of Sourav Ganguly continuing as a director in the ICC Board.

Secretary Jay Shah will be the alternate director as well as India's representative at the Chief Executive Committee meets of the global body.

Dubai flights hit over India-UAE seat dispute

ANEESH PHADNIS & ARINDAM MAJUMDER
Mumbai/New Delhi, 24 December

Indian carriers are being forced to cancel flights to Dubai or consider flights to other destinations in the United Arab Emirates following a seat allocation dispute between the two countries.

The dispute required the intervention of the external affairs ministry after which Dubai has agreed to allow Indian airlines to operate

4,800 seats per week. This works to account 26 daily flights with an 180 seat Airbus A320 aircraft. Currently, Indian carriers were utilising around 6,800 seats to Dubai, it is learnt. The seat allocation will come into effect from Monday.

The development, which comes close on the heels of the suspension of air service to the UK, will spoil travel plans during Christmas holidays. Dubai, along with Maldives, has been a popular holiday destination for Indians in recent months.

India and UAE agreed to an air travel bubble in July. According to the agreement, UAE airlines were allowed to transport passengers only between the two countries. However, dispute arose as Indian carriers objected to Emirates flying passengers beyond Dubai. And Dubai authorities complained that Indian airlines have been flying more flights than allocated to its carriers.

Earlier this week Dubai threatened to put on hold approvals granted to Indian carriers but the issue has been resolved for now. "Both sides have agreed on equitable distribution of seats," a civil aviation ministry official said

At present, Air India, GoAir, IndiGo, Vistara and SpiceJet are operating flights to Dubai. Emirates and flydubai are UAE carriers operating from Dubai.

The sudden change in seat allocation in the midst of a holiday season has put airlines in a spot and they are looking to operate flights to other destinations such as Sharjah or Ras Al Khaimah.

However, with capacity being far less at these airports than Dubai, airline executives see limited opportunity to operate more flights.

"We have four daily departures to Dubai and are evaluating options for operating flights to other destinations in the UAE," a senior GoAir executive said. A Vistara executive said the airline will be scaling down its Dubai flights and a decision would be taken in the regards soon.

IndiGo and SpiceJet spokespersons did not respond to text messages sent to them.
